

Annual International Conference on the Middle East

The Role of Tribes in the 21st Century

Society, security, politics, religion

Bedouin tribal elders in Jordan. © Efraim Tureček

While the role of blood relationships in Western societies has almost disappeared, its influence in the Middle East is still very significant. Indeed, some observers believe that due to recent events, the importance of extended families has even increased. Experts from Pakistan, the UK, Israel, USA as well as the Czech Republic will be helping us explore this issue.

When: 10 April 2015, 9 a.m. – 5 p.m.

Where: Metropolitan University Prague, Prokopova 16, Prague 3

For detailed programme and registration: <http://registrace.mup.cz>